How do you tell them apart?
William wears white—every single day.

Twin Construction is a residential custom builder and remodeler in the Over-the-Mountain Birmingham community. In 2001, David Seigel left his construction job in Atlanta to start a small construction company in the Birmingham area. His first project was his twin's (William) kitchen. "The project went very well, so I decided to join David to start Twin Construction," says William. "Since then, we've grown to almost 40 employees, expanding our services to cabinets and interior design," adds David.

"We have a referral rate of over 97%, and we really rely on the recommendations of our past clients. The greatest compliment I ever receive is a referral from satisfied clients." —David Seigel

Twin Interiors

Twin Interiors has two full-time designers: Laurie Fulkerson and Eleanor Tolbert. They work closely with clients, architects, contractors, and subcontractors to complete each project. Twin Interiors uses local fabricators for window treatments, furniture, lighting, upholstery, and other custom finishes. The two designers are always on the search for unique items, and they use many well-known vendors such as Grizzel and Mann, Furniture Classics, Gabby, and Visual Comfort.

Twin's designers can help clients with all interior selections, including plumbing, lighting, countertops, and tile. They can also procure interior items such as rugs, window treatments, and furniture for both construction and non-construction clients.

TWIN SHARES STEPS ON THE DESIGN PROCESS:

1. We begin by looking at the owner's style and the style of the original architecture in the surrounding neighborhood.
2. Architectural drawings are not required for an initial meeting.
3. We recommend an architect for most complex projects. For an addition to a home, we require an architect.
4. For interior renovations, our in-house designers can provide layouts.
5. Our building and design teams can provide services for Twin Construction clients as well as non-Twin clients.
6. We always plan an initial consultation to gather information and share information about the design / build process.

Classic Cabinets by Design

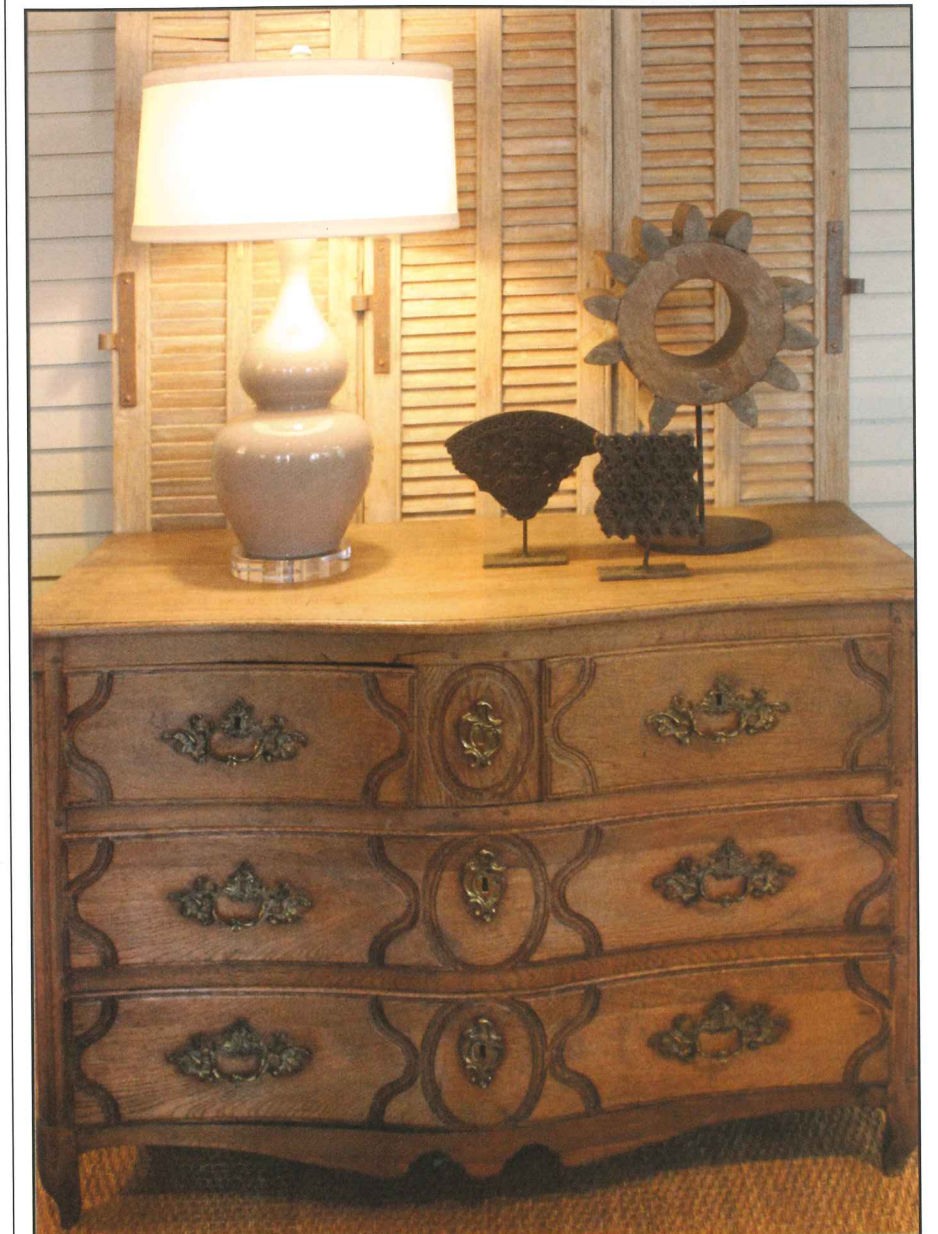

Classic Cabinets by Design offers cabinet design services and sells five different lines of quality cabinetry.

Classic Cabinets by Design has two full-time designers: Lisa Cleghorn and Lauren Brown. Both women specialize in redesigning spaces and cabinet layouts. The designers ensure that each plan has a high level of function that is also pleasing to the eye. They can provide layout drawings, as well as 3-D renderings and elevations to give clients a realistic look at their future kitchen or bath.

Classic Cabinets by Design carries everything from stock cabinets for laundry rooms to fully customizable inset cabinets. Brand names include Diamond, Decora, Aristokraft, Omega, and Wellborn.

The first step of the cabinet process is an on-site consultation with a designer. The designer will then measure the space and provide the client with layout drawings and elevations. Follow-up meetings are then scheduled to review drawings and discuss changes as needed.
